Dear Amy,

Congratulations! I'm pleased to inform you that you've been chosen to take part in the Wilson Center's Congressional Cybersecurity Lab. We received an incredible number of applications compared to the space available, and we're confident you'll make a valuable contribution to the Lab's discussions.
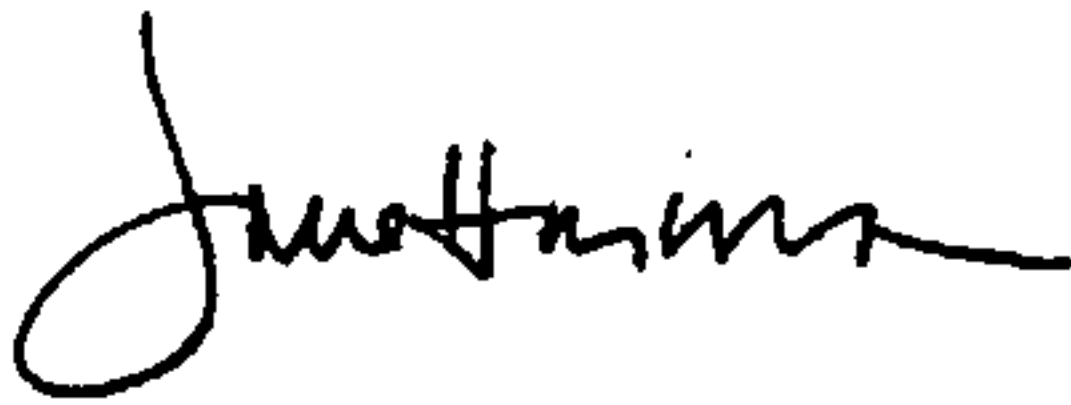

Over the course of the six-week seminar series, you'll engage with some of the leading scholars and practitioners in this space. You'll also build new relationships with colleagues—in both parties and both houses—who share your interest in the nation's digital security. As a reminder, the first Lab session will meet at the Wilson Center on September 16th from 2:30 to 5:30. We'll send out more details on the syllabus, speakers, and readings soon. For now, further details, including dates, are available on our website. As a reminder, you must attend at least 5 out of 6 sessions to complete the program.

To indicate that you accept your place in the Lab, please contact Katherine Zublin at katherine.zublin@wilsoncenter.org by close of business on Friday, September 9th. We'd like to know as soon as possible if you'll be able to take part in the Lab so that, if not, we can offer available places to applicants on our waitlist.

In addition, we have a few spots left for our overnight Cyber Lab StaffDel on Thursday, October 13th. This study trip to New Jersey and New York City will focus on the role of cybersecurity in the protection of critical infrastructure. If you are interested in attending, please let me know by 12pm today, Wednesday, September 7th.

My congratulations again. We look forward to welcoming you to the program!

Sincerely,

Jane Harman
